

Gianna Borroto Counsel

Gianna Borroto is a Senior Attorney with over ten years of experience successfully representing clients in complex matters before the immigration courts, U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services, the Board of Immigration Appeals, federal courts, and U.S. consulates worldwide. She specializes in humanitarian and international protection issues, such as asylum, unaccompanied children's cases, T and U visas, and removal of INTERPOL Red Notices.

Prior to joining Grossman Young & Hammond, Gianna worked as a litigator with the American Immigration Council and the National Immigrant Justice Center, where she focused on impact litigation and class action lawsuits defending the rights of asylum seekers, immigrant youth, and separated families. Having litigated both in immigration court and before the federal courts, Gianna is skilled at representing clients in all stages of their immigration cases.

Gianna is fluent in English and Spanish.

Education

- J.D., Harvard Law School
- B.S., University of Florida

